An addition to the Clyde Miller residence in Buchanan street, has been recently completed. The new room, added to the west end of the house, beyond the dining hall, is to be a ball room. Friends of the Miller family look forward to some dancing parties in the new part of the house; for the Millers entertain charmingly and often.

The Shawnee County Political Science club will have an anniversary party Wednesday, July 7, at the home of Mrs. W. A. Johnston, in Elmwood Place, West Sixth avenue. Each member of the club is privileged to invite three guests.

The club was organized a year ago at Mrs. Johnston's home, when guests were asked to a registration party at her house. The club has been holding meetings regularly during the past year. Mrs. Lucy L. Milliken was the club's first president. Mrs. Festus Foster was chosen president for next year.

The June meeting of the Society of Midland Authors, of which James Whitcomb Riley is honorary president, and Hobart C. Chatfield-Taylor, president, has just been held at Lake Forest, near Chicago. A part of the entertainment was a polo game on the grounds of the Owensia club, followed by a supper at the home of the president at Fairlawn. Later in the evening the Lake Forest Players presented the drama "Riders to the Sea" at the Playhouse Aldis, for the guests. The Kansas membership in the club includes: Miss Esther Clark, Lawrence, Mrs. Margaret Hill McCarter of Topeka and Mr. William Allen White of Emporia.

The corresponding secretary of the association is Mrs. Clara Bewick Colby of Washington, D. C., the daughter of General Colby. She was formerly editor of the Women's Journal that was published at Beatrice, Neb., and she was one of the speakers in the Kansas campaign for suffrage, when the Kansas women worked for the submission of the amendment.

The ancient sweater, knitted wool has been relegated to the backroom in favor of luxuriously smart silk affairs that incidentally cost about three times the price of the sturdy worsted companion of summer outings heretofore. This graceful silk sweater is gold color and white with a border in black and white matched by a black and white sport hat.

They tell us the days of romances are over and "the past comes never again." This is a story of a P. W. G., who has more romances than she knows what to do with. She and another young woman are going to love soon for a trip to the west coast, but they are first to go to a near city, where it is expected an addition to the party will be made. Just what that addition will be, is the question that furnishes the complication for the plot.

Two men will be at the station to meet the young woman of romances. She has not yet decided which one will pay for the honeymoon trip that she counts on taking. Each is expecting the honor, nor knows of the other. One of the men who will meet the train is a Missourian and the other a Virginian. The girl grows pale when she thinks of her dilemma, but her heart is still uncertain. Perhaps she hopes her traveling companion will be kind enough to console the one she finally decides to discard. Supposing it should be the gentleman from Virginia who is rejected. The day say these southern fellows still shoot sometimes when they don't like the way the cards are stacked. How very interesting, if he should come armed to clear the track of rivals.

The developments of the case are so interesting to some of the friends of the besieged maiden that they threaten to take the same train to the big city to see, not those who arrive to meet it, but which one leaves on Honeymoon Trail.
